1.	ERA-REC- 122 Art 7.1(b)	P	Erich BINDER	 No direct adoption of a fixed end date of another regulation (potential for change, possibility of influencing this regulation?) The naming of a fixed date does not guarantee the implementation date, in fact it carries the risk of postponing planned, other TAP implementations. A period of time is necessary in order to guarantee realistic conditions for the different companies; This gives companies the chance to implement them efficiently and in a resource-saving manner (leads to faster implementation) It is also important to define which TAP functionality is affected
